

Journal Office

International Journal for Health for All

Int J Health for All

International Journal for Health for All is an internationally peer reviewed scientific health equity journal and an official publication of People's Health Movement-Nepal Students' Circle. It encompasses all aspects of public health-health and human rights, social justice and health equity, social determinants of health, health policies and their implications. Int J Health for All invites original research papers, review articles, program narratives, short communications, viewpoints containing new insight into any of the theme mentioned above that are not published or not being considered for publication elsewhere. For more information about the journal mail us at phmnepal.students@gmail.com.

Manuscript preparation guidelines for authors

- I. The manuscript should generally not exceed 3000 words and 30 references for an original article. Review article should have 4000-5000 words and at least 40 references. Word count for a case report should not exceed 1000 and references should not be more than 5. In case of a brief communication word count should be limited to 1000 and references limited to 10. It may contain one table and one figure. Letter to the editor is limited to 500 words and 5 references.
- II. An abstract not exceeding 250 words for original and review articles and 50 words for case reports. The abstract must be structured (background, methods, results, and conclusion) in case of original research paper.
- III. Keywords: A list of 3 to 10 key words of Medical Subjects Headings (MeSH) from Index Medicus should be added to bottom of the abstract page.
- IV. References must be in Vancouver style and serial number of each reference in the text must be given as superscript.
- V. Number of tables should be limited and the content of the table should not be repeated in the text.
- VI. Research paper should explain well how the research was conducted, what methods were used, and what statistical tools were used in data analysis.
- VII. Manuscript must be written in good English.
- VIII. Manuscript should be submitted via mailing us at phmnepal.students@gmail.com .

Int J Health for All is strongly against plagiarism. Plagiarism in academic publishing has increased more than ever. Whether this is deliberately done because of the pressure to publish or as the result of an author inadvertently copying from work that has already been published, plagiarism nevertheless fundamentally undermines academic publishing. To avoid this and maintain the highest possible standards, all submitted manuscripts are checked for plagiarism using plagiarism checking system. The manuscript not meeting the above-mentioned house-standard of this journal will not be accepted, and if found submitted they will not be processed. Manuscript good for processing will get "Acknowledgement of Receipt" after few days of submission.